The Portuguese Marseillaise is the new national anthem and the embiem of monarchy on the palace has been replaced by the flag of red and green, the colors of the republican party.

That there was fierce fighting in the streets of Lisbon is evidenced by despatches from all quarters. Disorders at Oporto have been repressed by the troops, many regiments of which are said to be still loyal to the king.

King Manuel, the queen mother and the queen dowager are reported to The Portuguese Marseillaise is the the queen dowager are reported to have taken refuge in the palace at Mafra, a short distance out of Lisbon. They may now be on a British war-ship bound for Gibraltar. At least they are considered to have reached a ace of safety. London advices say that by a treaty of alliance Great Britain is bound to afford protection to the king of Portu-gal, if this is "duly applied for."

The French newspapers are urging the government of France not to per-mit intervention, even if in Spain, too, the government is threatened with overthrow. The French cabinet will meet tomorrow to deliberate on the Portuguese situation and the advisa-bility of sending a warship to Lisbon. Already British warships are on the way to protect British interests at the scene of the trouble. The American gunboats Petrel and Wheeling are at Genoa, within easy sail of Lisbon, if the American government decides to send them there.

A significant incident according to the Lisbon despatches, is the visit paid by the Spanish minister to the republican leaders after the fall of the pal-ace and after the flag of the revolu-tion was hoisted on the town hall.

ALL-NIGHT ARTILLERY FIRE. Insurgents Unable to Reach the Center of the City.

Lishon. Oct 5.—The capital is now completely in the hands of the republicans, who have formed a provisional government, with Theophile Braga as president. A new national flag of ret and green is flying over all the public buildings, including the Town hall. King Manuel, with the queen mother, Amelia, and his grandmother, the queen dowager, Maria Pia, has taken refuge at Maria, twenty-three miles from Lisbon.

The tower of the church atached to the palace was demolished.

No Attack on Private Property. Thus far, however, no attack has en made upon private property, and is reported that the banks are being guarded by bluejackets.

Despatches Suppressed. No news has been received from the provinces, for communication has largely been cut off and despatches and messages of all kinds have been sup-pressed.

All Night Artillery Fire. All through the night artillery and rife fire was incessant, and towards dawn it increased in intensity. At 11 o'clock last night insurgents, encamp-ed on the heights of Avenida Da Liberdado, tried to force their way to the center of the city, but were driven back by the loyal troops. As the latter passed the barracks of the First Artillery they discovered that it was in the bands of rebel civilians. They charged upon the civilians, and dis-lodged them, with considerable loss to

The Portuguese government, as soon as it learned the extent of the rising, decided that it would be safest to have King Manuel leave the palace. As he issued forth he was greeted by the Spanish minister. The king's countenance was grave. He told the minister that he would retain as small a suite as possible, as he did not wish to expose his friends to danger.
